ABSTRACT

An optical information recording medium with excellent surface flatness and little intermark interference during recording, as well as a method for manufacturing this medium are provided. An optical information recording medium 10 capable of reproducing information using laser light having a reflective layer 2 and a recording layer 5, in that order, on a substrate 1, and the reflective layer 2 being an alloy containing aluminum and nickel.

5